
Joseph B. Marshall, Jr.

Deputy Chief for Resources Management/Comptroller Bureau of Medicine and Surgery

Mr. Marshall assumed his current duties as Deputy Chief for Resource Management/Comptroller in June 2006. In this position, he serves as the chief financial executive for Navy Medicine and as resource advisor to the Chief, Bureau of Medicine and Surgery. He is responsible for establishing policy and managing financial and manpower resources for a medical activity totaling more than $6 billion per year in operating costs. He directs four subsidiary financial organizations, supporting worldwide financial transactions for all of Navy's medical activities. He also leads the planning, programming, and budgeting process throughout Navy Medicine, interfacing directly with both Navy and Office of the Secretary of Defense counterparts.

Prior to assuming his current position, Mr. Marshall was the Deputy Director of the Navy Programming Division on the Chief of Naval Operations staff. In this position, he oversaw the building of the Navy's Program Objective Memorandum (POM), including all of the Navy's investment and operating accounts. The POM is the Department's financial plan and totaled over $120 billion per year.

Mr. Marshall entered the Senior Executive Service in October 2001 and until 2003 he was an Associate Chief Financial Officer at the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA), where he formulated financial policy and strategic and performance plans for an enterprise which, were it in the private sector, would be the sixth largest company in the world with 100,000 employees, $123 billion in assets, and over $70 billion in annual spending. While at USDA, Mr. Marshall was specifically recognized by the Secretary for his efforts in USDA's first-ever "clean" financial opinion, for improving financial reporting and budget oversight, and for leading the department-wide efforts to improve organizational effectiveness, resulting in a "green" score for USDA on the President's Management Scorecard.

Before joining USDA, Mr. Marshall was the Comptroller of the United States' Transportation Command, a $5 billion Department of Defense activity. In that capacity, he led a staff of military and civilian financial professionals and directed three subsidiary financial organizations, supporting worldwide financial transactions for all of DoD's transportation operations. Mr. Marshall produced compelling improvements and results during his tenure, achieving substantial savings for customers and improving financial reporting.

During Mr. Marshall's 25-year Navy career which began in 1976, he had command of a destroyer and was recognized as the most outstanding of 16 ships, twice winning the coveted "Battle E." Additionally, he was recognized repeatedly for his exceptional financial and operational expertise. Prior to command, he served in a variety of surface warfare afloat positions and in financial management jobs ashore. Mr. Marshall retired as a Captain in 2001.

Mr. Marshall graduated from Vanderbilt University and received his commission through the Reserve Officer Training Program at that university. He also holds master's degrees in financial management from the Naval Postgraduate School and in national resource strategy from the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. Mr. Marshall is a member of the American Society of Military Comptrollers.

Mr. Marshall's awards include: Presidential Rank Award of Meritorious Executive; the Navy Superior Civilian Service Award; Performance Awards (2002-2011); USDA Honor Award for Excellence (Unqualified Audit Opinion); USDA Honor Award for Excellence (Human Capital); USDA CFO Award (Unqualified Audit Opinion); USDA CFO Award (Credit Reform); Defense Superior Service Medal; Navy Meritorious Service (3 awards); Navy & Marine Corps Commendation Medal (2 awards); Navy & Marine Corps Achievement Medal (3 awards).
